AI in the terminal

The Department of Data Science and Analytics is pleased to invite faculty to the faculty course "AI in the terminal: Claude Code and Codex for research and teaching", scheduled from August 12 to August 14, 2026 (detailed schedule below). Participants in this course must use a paid variant of Claude (for Claude Code) or GPT (for OpenAI Codex). The Gemini subscription from BI does not offer access to the filesystem, and so cannot be used for this course.
Fill out the form below to register.
Deadline to register: The registration will remain open until August 10, 2026, but note that the priority will be given to those who register earlier if the number of registrations exceeds the capacity of the course (30 participants).
Instructor: Jonas Moss (jonas.moss@bi.no)
Language of instruction: English
Location: Campus Oslo

15 hours in total.

Prerequisites

No prerequisites, but we will use the terminal actively in this course.

Learning outcomes

The overarching goal of the course is to get used to using AI tools with access to your filesystem. This involves:

- Setting up projects in an LLM-friendly way,
- Understand the very basics of git,
- Getting comfortable using the terminal,
- Using LLMs "correctly".

Course content

LLMs on your filesystem

- Filesystem, text files: The benefits of plain text (e.g., Markdown, LaTex, BibTex).
- Setting up a workflow that allow AIs to work productively
- Using Git for version control

LLMs for research

- Literature overview, finding citations, reference list checks, download PDFs, check DOIs.
- Running statistics, figuring out best practices, developing methods
